Recycling Process and Paper Quality
Sponsored by Waste Management, Inc.
Salons G and H

As recycling programs in municipalities throughout the U.S. continue to evolve, changes in collection and processing systems are impacting the quality and full recovery of many recyclable commodities. Declines in the quality of recovered paper, in particular, have been steadily increasing as more municipalities switch to single stream collection programs. This session will include an overview of recovered paper markets and how declines in quality are impacting recycled paper mills, as well as a conversation on ways to improve municipal recycling programs.

Speakers: Stan Lancey, Chief Economist, American Forest & Paper Association; Fred Johnson, SPNewsprint Co.; Gerald Young, Director of Recycling, Village of Ridgewood, New Jersey
