Presentation "100 Mayors Who Care"

"100 Mayors Who Care" is a way for Mayors to give back to the cities in which they gather for Conference meetings. The concept, first introduced by Conference President Barnett at the 2019 Fall Leadership Meeting, is simple: Mayors in attendance hear three-minute "pitches" from three Washington, DC-based non-profit service organizations. The mayors then vote for their favorite pitch and each participating mayor (or any other conference attendee wishing to do so) contributes $100 to support the work of the winning non-profit. The idea is that mayors leave meeting cities with more than the learning gained and relationships strengthened through their attendance; they also leave behind a legacy benefiting non-profits serving the cities they have visited.

Microgrids and Energy Storage

11:45 a.m. - 12:45 p.m.

Pan American

Public acceptance of and demand for renewable energy has made possible non-traditional energy generation and distribution models that further efficiency, diversity and carbon emission reduction preferences of the modern consumer. The hybrid model, for example, might be a mix of solar, wind and battery storage to smoothen intermittency periods.

The speakers in this session are mayors and experts with direct experience with microgrids. They will be answering the questions of whether or not these types of non-traditional energy delivery systems are real, and are they being financed. Mayors want to know if microgrids can satisfy local electricity demand in their communities, and at what scale must they be to succeed financially.
